T. W. PRESTON DISCUSSES DANGER FROM FLOOD AND FIRE IN GLENDALE

During a recent visit to the lemon and orange district some 8 miles east of San Diego I could not help contrasting the water conditions there with those now existing in Glendale. My host, who had a 5-acre lemon grove, told me that when his "turn" came he received so slight a flow of water that it took an entire week to irrigate his trees. I found this condition of affairs most unsatisfactory in the household as well, where one had to wait 10 or 15 minutes for enough water to accumulate in a bath tub to make bathing possible. Yet the rainfall of last winter in San Diego County was far above the average.

With these facts fresh in my mind I read with much satisfaction the announcement of our local water department that the "excess rate" for users of over 1000 cu. feet had been reduced from 50 to 30 cents per 1000. Two years ago a fruit raiser paid 70 cents for this and was also forced to pay a very unreasonable charge of $1.50 for the privilege of having his water metered. This was when the "Consolidated" had things all their own way and many of us know to our sorrow what that meant. Whether we were on the municipal ownership side or among those (and many of them our very best citizens) who opposed the water bonds, I think we must all agree that thus far, at least, the promises of better service and cheaper water have been fully lived up to. If, as stated, the water department can be run at the greatly reduced rates now in force we shou'd in all fairness say "well done" to those who have brought it about.

Perhaps there is no greater asset to a community than an ample supply of pure water, for with good water goes a guarantee of good health. But I believe Glendale needs two other things and needs them badly, viz., protection from fire and from floods. The inability of our chemical apparatus to control the fire which a few months ago destroyed a dwelling on Kenwood St. and necessitated the calling for help from Tropico proved to the observer how serious might be the loss should a fire break out in such a place as a lumber yard, in one of the larger buildings on Brand Boulevard, or in such a structure as the Sanitarium. Aside from the question of whether the purchase of our present apparatus was "good business" the fact remains that it is very poor business to trust our property and possibly our lives to its inefficiency under present conditions in this city.

As to the danger from flood, the experiences of two winters ago is still fresh in the minds of all of us. If any Doubting Thomas will examine the present condition of Verdugo wash at Glendale Ave. and Verdugo Road he will find the following: The flood of 1913-1914 washed great masses of rock, gravel, etc., down from the Verdugo watershed and deposited a large amount of it in the bed of the wash, raising it to such an extent that the level of the bottom of the wash for a long distance is actually 3 or 4 feet higher than the surrounding country, and the only obstacle to the flood water breaking out was, and is, a low bank of sand and gravel in places only 3 or 4 feet wide. When we remember that the entire site of Glendale has been built up by sand and gravel deposits left by floods of years gone by, we cannot but realize the very grave and imminent danger to the greater part of the city should even a very moderate flood come down Verdugo Canyon as it has come in greater or less volume in former years. The work that has been done and is now under way above this point to confine the stream in a narrow bed only increases the danger, since the confined waters will tend to scour out their bed more deeply and carry down a greater amount of rock, sand and gravel to still further raise the level of the bed of the stream and increase the probability of an overflow at the danger points below. The popular slogan of "Safety First" may well apply in the two matters referred to above.

MAKING NEW CITIES

M. B. HARTMANN SAYS GLENDALE SHOULD DISTRICT CITY FOR FUTURE GROWTH

Among the many men of high genius whom France has produced none is better known than Baron Haussman. A year after the proclamation of the French empire, Louis Napoleon and George Eugene Haussman applied the first great and comprehensive scheme of modern city-making. From a congested and unorganized urban center along the Seine arose the most splendid capital of modern times. This was the beginning of a new science.

This new profession of city planning was quickly adopted by German municipalities and exploited to its full possibilities; so that now nearly every German city has a department in its local government devoted to city expansion, and any city which should lay out a new quarter without regard to the general scheme of growth would be ridiculed. The writer noticed this twelve years ago while traveling in that country. This also applies to architecture.

In our own country Boston and Washington are far ahead of other cities in this new science of conscious, rational and esthetic expansion. The former city has arranged its growth as a unit for a hundred years hence. The national capital, in accordance with an organic city plan adopted some years ago, is now in the process of a reconstruction calculated to facilitate access from part to part and to arrange its vistas in such a way as to exhibit monuments and public buildings in the fullness of their architectural splendor.

Other cities, notably Cleveland with its famous group plan, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Omaha, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, Chicago, whose parks and city plans this writer investigated about six years ago, show the spirit of the times in their activities.

There has been a general awakening, a realization that cities in taking care of their traffic, in protecting the health of their inhabitants and in making themselves attractive to the eye must have their lines thought out in advance.

What is Glendale doing to provide for her future? How and where are we to locate our industrial centers? What are we doing to make Glendale a worthy gateway to Los Angeles? What are we doing to show the world the peerless native vistas of our lordly mountains. Let us not live for this day alone. Let us not be blinded to a future of fascinating possibilities by petty wants or the misplaced economies of the present. The test of our patriotism is here, now. It will be here until the opportunity of the present has been embraced or lost. Our loyalty of today imposes obligation upon us to serve the future. If true loyalty involved only the present what would the builders of this republic have done for us? What will the sincere civic patriots of Glendale do today for the Glendale of the future?

M. B. HARTMANN.

STATES FOR NEXT WEEK

It has been represented to the management of The Glendale Evening News that inasmuch as the States that were represented in the news columns last week got a full week's notice of the approach of the registration, that it is doing injustice to the next set of States to give them merely a day's notice. The News is convinced that there is justice in this view and has determined to postpone the publication of the next lists until a week from today. That will make Monday, Nov. 1, Kansas Day; Tuesday, Nov. 2, Nebraska Day; Wednesday, Nov. 3, Michigan Day; Thursday, Nov. 4, Kentucky Day; Friday, Nov. 5, Minnesota Day, and Saturday, Nov. 6, Ohio Day.

With a week's notice there should be no question of the showing made by those States. The Sunflower State is now at liberty to work without any handicap and it is expected to make an excellent showing. So should all the others. Begin working on your lists at once and get ready for next week.

Mrs. H. G. Martin, 828 Colorado boulevard, returned home Friday, after a very pleasant visit to San Francisco, where she has many friends. Mrs. Martin says that nothing can exceed the beauty and interest of the Exposition. During the five weeks she spent in the northern capital she had many opportunities to view its wonders and always found something new at each visit.

They are suspected of trying to dynamite vessels carrying munitions to the allies. The case was postponed for one day and the two accused men sent to jail without the privilege of bail. After being locked up Lieutenant Fay asked permission to make a statement. QUESTIONS OF THE DAY

POLITICAL SCIENCE AND CIVICS SECTION OF TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB TO MEET

The new Political Science and Civics section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, which meets this week for the first time, promises to fill a long felt need in the lives of Glendale's women citizens. As enfranchised citizens Glendale women are not content to be uninformed. A demand has arisen for a fundamental knowledge of our American institutions, in the light of which intelligent consideration can be given the vital municipal questions of the day. To approach the questions of the day intelligently, we need first to understand how our present American institutions came into existence.

The study of history from such a governmental viewpoint is one of keen enjoyment and illuminating surprises. Fisk says: "The people of the United States are a transplanted people. We are European people transplanted to the soil of a New World. Our history until the last nine or ten generations must be sought in the history of Europe, and chiefly in that of England. From England our forefathers brought the institutions and laws out of which our state and national governments have since grown."

Beard says: "There is a lingering tradition in the United States that the men of the eighteenth century who laid the foundations of our system of government broke violently from political experience and sought their guidance in the abstract principles of the rights of man. As a matter of fact, however, the Revolutionary Fathers had no quarrel with the fundamental English institutions under which they lived; their revolt was against the colonial policy of the British government, a protest against definite measures which affected them adversely, not a demand for the realization of the equalitarian notions enunciated in the Declaration of Independence, which served very well to justify the Revolution, but afforded no practical basis for the reconstruction of the political system after British dominion was thrown off. Neither in the creation of the state government nor in the formation of the Union did the Fathers depart very radically from experience. With governors, councils, legislatures, judicial systems, municipal and local governments, and their operations under American conditions, they were familiar; and most of them were staid and conservative men, well schooled in the actual management of public business, they had neither interest nor desire to lead them into experiments in theoretical politics. The sources of the American government, therefore, are to be sought not in realms of political philosophy, but in the records which describe the institutional heritage with which the new nation began its career of independence."

The section of Political Science and Civics is so planned that it may mean much to every woman who desires to attend its sessions. The section, which meets only once a month, will convene Thursday of this week at the home of the assistant curator, Mrs. A. L. Weaver, 235 Kenwood street, at 2 p. m. This week's work will consist of the organization of the section, and the introduction to the course by the curator, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones. Mrs. A. L. Weaver will review early colonial life—the customs of the period, dress, recreation, etc. Mrs. Jones will review the conditions leading up to the first council, or representative assembly—the House of Burgesses. Her talk will bring out discussion on the following questions:

1. What is a citizen?
2. On what are our American institutions of the present day founded?
3. Name two causes of our seeking self-government and final freedom from English rule.
4. Who was the first person to conceive the idea of planting a state that should be entirely Protestant in America?
6. What was the first charter granted in America, and what special provileges did it contain?
7. What was the first permanent town to be settled, and who was the first governor?
8. What was the first tax ever paid in America?
9. What was the first representative government in America and how was it secured?
10. How long was this before the Declaration of Independence?
11. Who was one of the members of the House of Burgesses?

Upon adjournment to the Intermediate school library across the street at 3:30 p. m. the ladies will be addressed on "Councils of Today," by Mr. Frederick Baker in the subject: "Various Forms of Municipal Government." Mr. Baker is unexcelled in his knowledge of this subject, and the public, men as well as women, are cordially invited to attend. Club membership is not a qualification for the open session of the section. Mrs. Jones states that opportunity will be given for discussion, and requests that those who are interested bring pencil and note paper, to both the study section, and the open session.

Visitors will be welcome at the study hour of the section this week. Lack of text books should keep no one from membership in the section, since reference text books will be placed in the Glendale Public Library for the use of the members of the section. There are no dues. Every member of the Tuesday Afternoon Club is eligible to membership in the section.

LOCAL POULTRY SHOW

GLENDALE-TROPICO BREEDERS TO HOLD EXHIBITION DEC. 9-11

Poultry breeders of both Glendale and Tropico are to have an opportunity to exhibit the results of their work during the past year. The Glendale-Tropico Poultry and Pet Stock association, at their recent meeting, Thursday, Oct. 21, completed arrangements for holding a show in the large garage on Broadway, near Glendale, Oct. 9-11 inclusive.

Great enthusiasm prevails among the members of the association and all are determined to make this the best local show that has ever been held in Southern California. The show will follow the annual Pasadena show and will just precede the Long Beach exhibition. San Fernando valley is full of fine poultry flocks. There are also many breeders who have made a specialty of pet stock and novelties. These should give variety to the show and attract attention.

Among the specialties to be exhibited are various beautifully colored pheasants, wild ducks, fancy Yorkshire canaries and a great variety of fancy pigeons. The inclusion of this fancy stock in the show will direct the attention of the whole of the breeders in Southern California to Glendale, and will enable this city to take its place in the very front as a center for fancy poultry.

By extending the field of the exhibition to Burbank and Eag'e Rock the show will cover the most productive part of the valley and will include many of the best breeders in the vicinity of Glendale.

The committee has arranged a premium list for the show. This is being printed in good style and will be issued in the form of a tastefu'ly arranged pamphlet. This will be widely distributed. The committee of five, appointed at the last meeting to make arrangements for the show, will offer an attractive list of prizes, consisting of valuable cups, merchandise, etc.

It is especially desired that all connected with the association do their best to get out a large number of exhibitors. Glendale, Tropico and the surrounding neighborhood should be able to get out 300 specimens at least. There is going to be a very fine exhibition of bantams and this is certain to prove a special attraction.

Every assistance necessary for the getting out of a large exhibition of poultry will be given prospective exhibitors. They will be assisted in selecting their birds if they themselves have not sufficient experience in that field. Those desiring such assistance should communicate with Walter M. Ross, show superintendent and secretary, 422 Colorado boulevard, Glendale.

There will shortly be pub'ished in Glendale a new monthly publication in the interests of poultry and pet stock. This will be the official organ of the association. Here will be given much interesting information regarding poultry raising and the production of eggs. The egg product of the country already far exceeds the product of its mines or of its fields and it can easily be seen that poultry raising is one of the most important industries in the United States.

M. E. CHURCH ORCHESTRA

Under the stimulation of the new pastor, the Rev. B. D. Snudden, the evening services at the First Methodist Episcopal church are attracting large congregations. One of the features of the service is the orchestra of five pieces which lent much tone and color to the music, Sunday night. It is hoped to increase this organization to ten instrumentalists by next Sunday and those who are qualified are requested to give their service.

DEFACING PUBLIC BUILDINGS

That there is nothing new under the sun was the opinion of the author of the Book of Ecclesiastes. If we needed confirmation of his opinion we would find it in the ruins of Pompeii where the excavations show us that the vandal who defaces public buildings in our times had his counterpart in those old days. The inscriptions in the public buildings of Pompeii, the rude carvings and emblems in the catacombs all tell of a desire in human nature to leave some mark or trace of its existence.

Very properly this habit of marking or defacing public buildings is considered the mark of a very undeveloped nature. The destructive faculty is a very primitive principle. It existed long before the constructive faculties were developed and it seems to perpetuate itself and refuse to be eliminated from the human family. To this day public buildings are defaced by boys and men who should know better, who write their names, or cut them with knives in prominent parts of buildings where they remain eyesores to all people of taste.

Nothing can be more barbarous than to injure and disfigure a fine new building with the commonplace names of commonplace people. It may even be said that were the names those of famous persons the inscribing of them on the fair surface of some fine Corinthian or Renaissance front of a modern building would be a crime.

Let the public of Glendale take a look at the front of the Glendale Public library and they will see what has been done to render hideous that fine new building. They will find that the corners of the pillars at the front stairs have been chipped and broken; that the low parapet in front of the building has been broken and rendered dilapidated and that other injuries have been perpetrated.

That the library is a credit to the town in the way of a building no person of good judgment needs to be told; that anyone should mar or deface the work that took so much trouble in the designing and the construction is a disgrace to those who perpetrated the vandalism. It is so easy to destroy; so difficult to construct. The cathedral of Rheims, that storehouse of art and beauty took centuries to evolve. In a few hours the German guns laid it in the dust. The spirit that defaces the public buildings of the country and the spirit that destroys Rheims cathedral or the library at Louvain are one and the same.

Parents should take this matter up with their children and let them understand how reprehensible is the conduct that results in the disfiguring of a fine building. The boy or girl who desires fame or who is to achieve fame does not need to seek to secure it by chipping off the edge of a cornice or graving commonplace initials or mawkish symbols of infantile affection on the oak, granite or plaster of a public building. If that is to be the foundation of their fame they are worse than the wretch, Eristostratus who set fire to and destroyed the famous temple of Athene at Ephesus, one of the seven wonders of the world.

RURAL CREDITS IN GERMANY

For more than one hundred and fifty years Germany has had a system of rural credits that has worked with admirable smoothness and has been the means of doing an immense deal of good in the agricultural sections of the country. The bonds of this system now hold their own. The war produces no effect on them. They are based on land, which no one can destroy or run away with, and they are issued by the farmer himself.

This system is known as "landschaft." It could be adapted to the needs of the United States and adopted here with immense benefit to the farming communities of the whole country. This system would give the farmer his own organized financial co-operation under charter from the United States government. A group of neighboring landowners, after getting the charter would determine the actual cash value of their combined land holdings. That value might be $5,000,000. They would issue on each mortgage bonds to be sold in the open market on security. The combined land worth $5,000,000 would be the security. That land would constitute the capital stock of the borrowing association.

The association would readily dispose of these bonds at par or above. The bonds would draw from 3 to 4 per cent and would run from 50 to 75 years. Who would buy them? The butcher, the baker, the smith, the shoemaker. All people with savings large or small. The security for so small an investment as a $100 bond is still your $5,000,000 aggregation of land.

What the farmer gives the association in the way of security is the mortgage on his particular piece of land. There are no lawsuits. The farmer's mortgage is held to be a judgment against the land, which the organization can collect when the farmer defaults. Under this system, however, there is no defaulting.

To get such a system as this, however, the United States government would have to pass legislation decreeing that further questioning of land titles on the lands of such corporations must cease. Soil values would have to be determined and there would necessarily be some changes in State laws.

This system, however, would be a proper solution of the problem of rural credits. Mortgage money lenders will oppose this system and almost any system that proposes to take the farmer out of their clutches. Large moneyed interests would favor the system as it would tend to general prosperity. At present the money shark is obtaining money from the people at large and lending it to the farmer at a profit to himself. Any direct system he will naturally oppose. Land is the basis of all wealth. Therefore the farmers hold the fundamental security. It is merely a question of putting that security into acceptable form. The farmers need organization, national organization and national marketing organization. When they get these, their troubles will be at an end.

The wireless telephone is coming to perfection with almost startling swiftness. A few weeks ago it was predicted that some time—years hence, possibly—speaking across the Atlantic by wireless would be possible. Today it stands as an accomplished fact.

TIME IS MONEY

So many people in this world forget to count time equivalent to money when figuring up their yearly balance. A man of the average physical and mental ability should be a wage earner whether working for himself or employed by some other one. A man's services should be worth $1000 per year, or perhaps $1500 and there are instances where his services to himself or to others may be equal to $2000 or $3000 per year. The man who is not employed is a money loser to the extent of the number of dollars he does not earn on account of lack of employment.

You may say that a man cannot lose money if he never had it but he has lost the time and time is the equivalent of money.

INTELLIGENT VOTERS

Tomorrow, Tuesday, October 26 is election day, and it is a very fair question to ask how many voters in the Glendale community know how to cast an intelligent ballot.

The Evening News will not attempt to dictate nor even advise as to how you should vote on the various questions, but this much the News will say, and that is, that every voter should get all possible information concerning these questions from the most reliable source possible.

Beware of jokers in propositions to be submitted at tomorrow's election. A few questions sometimes seem all right on their face but on close investigation there is to be found, a "nigger in the woodpile." It is not a good plan to look for evil in everything, but when it comes to the question of politics, one will not go astray to keep a pretty close watch as to the propositions submitted on the ballot.

We never read such dispatches as this, says an exchange: Fort Bragg, Cal., Jan. 14.—A severe blizzard, originating here has swept all over Central and Southern California. Railroads are blockaded with snow. Street car traffic in the cities is seriously impeded. The poor are suffering from the cold. Several reported frozen to death. The Sacramento, San Joaquin, Colorado and Los Angeles rivers reported frozen over with thick ice.

There are about 70,000 undergraduate women students in institutions of higher learning in the United States. Women have the pluck and persistence to pursue educational courses to the limit of possibilities. And the great majority of these highly educated women make good and effective use of their learning.

PASSING BAD CHECKS

There are on exhibition at police headquarters a collection of worthless checks issued by two different parties who have been defrauding the merchants of the city for some time. One of these parties signs himself A. Bergstrom. On others the names Robert Keating and C. W. Keating appear. Other names are also in evidence. The false check issuers have passed checks on Roberts & Echols, the Bosserman Hardware Company, the Newton Electric Company and others.

Chief of Police Hera'd suggests that local stores cash no checks for strangers, especially after banking hours. Should any stranger appear with a check of doubtful character the merchant should at once detain the stranger on some pretense or other and meantime phone to the police who will at once appear and investigate the case. Should the check prove all right no harm will have been done. Merchants are specially warned against cashing checks after banking hours on Saturdays, for parties whom they do not know.

K. Kelly, R. Foss, Ernest Gregg, Lou Kirri and Mr. Severance started out Saturday on a quail hunt in the neighborhood of Mr. Kelly's ranch. They brought home the limit of quail, hares and rabbits.

Mrs. Elijah Zerr of Glendale has returned home from visiting her father, Mr. W. H. Klimcke, of San Francisco. Mr. Zerr is at present working with the Universal Moving Picture Company, on Santa Cruz Island. While in San Francisco Mrs. Zerr also visited Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Newton, who formerly lived in Glendale.

AUTO ACCIDENT

As Albert E. Cawood, 1553 Ivy street, was driving his auto along Brand boulevard, in the vicinity of Orange street, he collided with a motorcycle ridden by C. L. Mount, 1009 Maple street. The motorcycle was badly broken. The case is being investigated.

LECTURE ON THE WAR

The men of the Presbyterian Church and congregation will have a very unusual opportunity at the Brotherhood meeting, Tuesday evening at 7:30, to hear Professor Cleland, of Occidental College, on the "War Crisis in Europe." Professor Cleland is a specialist in modern history and has made a study of present European conditions. You will make a mistake if you do not hear him.

Hardly any two men possess the equal earning ability. Thus the variation in wages. The rule that would cause the incapable man to receive the same salary as the capable man would cause $15 and $30 suits of clothes to sell for the same price.

The cause of European countries being at war is a question that puzzles the most profound students.

In the matter of success on the stage many may feel themselves called, but few are chosen.

ON PARLIAMENTARY LAW

Mrs. T. S. McNutt, parliamentarian of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, will hold a meeting of those who are studying parliamentary rules and procedure, at 1:30 p. m., just before the club meeting. Her subject will be "The Adoption of By-laws and Amendments." In the drill Mrs. Oliver O. Clark will act as presiding officer. The lessons are all based on "Roberts' Rules of Order," the revised version.

The Hallowe'en stunt should not be destructive. There may be fun without doing damage.

Love attacks the president of the United States in much the same way that it lays siege to Jake Smith, the farmer boy.

Many questions are so suggestive that the answer may be determined from the meaning of the question.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Mark S. Van Leuven entertained the West Glendale Methodist Church as charter members and have held official positions in the church up to the present time. They recently sold their home and were making their plans to move to Burbank in a few days to go into the chicken business, which the pastor declared was a move for the extension of Methodism. They are modest and congenial and thought they would escape without public notice, but their many friends of the church thought otherwise, and called on thought otherwise and called on them Thursday evening last week and invited them to the church to discuss the good they had done by their consistent, cheerful Christian lives.

The church was crowded and good spirits characterized young and old alike. Misses Louise and Virginia Fambrough started things going as representatives of the Sunday School by playing a piano duet; and then the pastor, Rev. H. Jackson Hartsell, spoke for the church a few well-chosen words. The Woman's Home Missionary Society called upon its president, Mrs. Florence Henderson, and she told how Brother and Sister Van Leuven were both members of that organization and how they would be missed. Then that dear, good woman whom we all love, Sister Ellen Cook, said they are members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and placed her claim against the prospective chicken ranch and said she likewise would miss them.

Mrs. Daniel Henke, accompanied by Mrs. D. Edward Johnston, rendered a violin solo with charming effect. Miss Clara Midcalf composed the words to a special piece of music for the occasion and was assisted in singing it by Mrs. Clara Rames and Mrs. D. E. Johnston. The Official Board then came forth and through Mr. J. E. Henderson claimed a place on the program with telling effect. In the name of all the organizations of the church and friends of the community he presented Mr. and Mrs. Van Leuven with a solid quartered-oak leather-cushioned rocking chair as a token of esteem and as a remembrance of the West Glendale Methodist church.

Mrs. Samuel Davis, as president of the Ladies' Aid Society, marched upon the platform with twenty blushing maids of about seventy summers and as choir director, had them sing a medley which was as confusing as the tongues at the tower of Babel. She then invited the people out to the chapel where refreshments and dainties were served. The occasion was characterized as a most splendid token of Christian esteem, which savored of the alabaster box of precious ointment poured out while folks are alive, instead of waiting till one were dead to put flowers on their grave.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Leuven have been married a good many years and their five-year-old boy came in for part of the honors, and but for all this, folks would just think they were going on a honeymoon. We wish them much joy and happiness in their new home.

LOMITA CLUB DANCE

When the sweet and rhythmic strains of the De Nubila Symphony orchestra of Los Angeles began to sound through the spacious assembly room of the Masonic Temple, Thursday evening, Oct. 21, it set swaying and pirouetting a most presentable assemblage of merry young people. These were the members of the Lomita Club, an organization connected with the Church of the Holy Family.

Many friends of the members of the club had joined them in their dance and the evening was characterized by a spirit of enjoyment and good will that made everything doubly enjoyable. The color effects throughout the hall were soft and delicate. The stage was banked with ferns and palms. The music was characterized by a rhythmic accuracy that made dancing a great treat.

Among the many excellent features of the evening was the dancing of the hesitation waltz by Miss Viola Yorba and Mr. Ernesto Martinez. This exhibition dance was greatly admired. The programs were nicely executed and were rendered doubly attractive by the fact that they were decorated on the front page with hand-painted roses, by Mrs. H. F. Frazer. The words "Lomita Club" were also painted in gold. The patronesses of the club dance were: Mrs. F. H. Folz, Mrs. Charles Durkens, Mrs. S. W. Wright, Mrs. H. N. Henry, Mrs. Anna Cousins, Mrs. H. S. Duffield, Mrs. P. L. Ferry, Mrs. O. G. Kelly, Mrs. A. R. Townsend, Mrs. O. S. Richardson.

The Floor Committee consisted of: W. B. Kelly, chairman; F. J. Fangman, Charles O'Neill, Paul Rigali, Ralph Huesman, John Saich, Jesse E. Smith and J. H. Folz. The reception committee consisted of: Harriett Bayard, Edna Lawson, Viola Yorba, Blanche Woodill, Jean McDonald, Eleanor Pauley, Stella Gies, Isabel Koverman, Ida Kaiser, Gertrude Cogan, Ysador Couts, Gertrude Braum, Agnes Rigali, Josephine Keller and Lillian Nolan.

AT THE MUSIC SECTION

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB LADIES LEARN ABOUT AMERICAN FOLK MELODIES

The Music Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club spent a very pleasant and profitable afternoon last Friday at the home of their curator, Mrs. E. W. Kinney, 1223 Seventh St. Mrs. Brahm Van Den Berg was the guest of honor for the day.

Mrs. Frank Grosvenor read a very able paper on "What Constitutes the Folk Music of America?" Mrs Grosvenor explained to the section that it is only in the south "possessing characteristic surroundings" and a race of natural singers, in its colored population, that something akin to an especial folk song has developed, distinctly different from the music of other nations. Plantation music is the direct outgrowth of American surroundings of Southern life.

Mrs. Herman West illustrated a number of charming compositions by Stephen C. Foster, well known writer of plantation melodies. Her rendition of "Old Folks at Home," one of the chief home songs of the world, being especially beautiful.

The inspiration given American composers by Indian themes was dwelt upon at length, and illustrations on the phonograph given. Alma Gluck's record of Cadman's beautiful song, "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water," Janet Spencer's record of "The Moon Drops Low," by Cadman, Indian Suite by McDowell given by Sousa's Band—all illustrative of the figures developed from Indian sources, charmed because of their poetic presentation of Indian life and romance. The subject chosen by the curator for the November meetings will be the discussion of Scandinavian Folk Music and Folk Lore, embracing Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland. Mrs. Dora Gibson of the Glendale High School will give the interpretive lectures on this subject, which should prove of interest to all music lovers.

Miss Melicent Virden, pianist; Mr. Julius Kranz, violinist; Mrs. LeRoy Bosserman, pianist; Miss Abbey Perry, reader, and Mrs. Brahm Von Den Berg, soprano soloist, will illustrate Mrs. Dora Gibson's programs.

The next meeting of the section will take place Friday, Nov. 12, 1915. Mrs. Vivian Webb, a well-known Glendale pianist, has kindly consented to give an afternoon of McDowell compositions at this meeting, in place of Mrs. Dora Gibson, who will be in attendance at Teachers' Institute at San Diego. Mrs. Gibson's course will commence Friday, Nov. 26.

TROPICO

Mrs. L. Purnell of Tenth St., with Dr. and Mrs. S. Pollock as her guests, have returned from Elizabeth Lake, where they journeyed by automobile last week.

Mrs. D. H. Imler, Eugene Imler and Miss Margery Imler returned yesterday from a ten days' visit to San Francisco. Eugene left immediately for Throop College, where he is a sophomore, and Miss Margery returned to her classes at Glendale High today. Miss Cora Hickman remains in San Francisco a few days' longer, enjoying the festivities incident to the Eastern Star conclave.

The president of the Norton Art club announces a postponement of the regular meeting for today until next Monday, October 31.

Under the direction of Mr. Will Hewlitt the Epworth League of the Tropico Methodist Church will give a social in the church parlors tonight. The young people are most cordially invited.

An invitation is extended to the ladies and friends of the Methodist Church to join with the Home Missionary Society in the regular meeting to be held Tuesday, Oct. 26, at 2:30 p. m., in the Social Hall of the church. Mrs. M. M. Cole, president, is planning a large work for the coming year and will appreciate the interest and co-operation of the women of the community, whether members or no.

Children's Bank Accounts
Teaching children the value of money is a very important part of their education.
Thrift does not come at our beck and call, nor can it be slipped on or off like an old coat. It is established by practice rather than theory—by example more than precept.
Girls as well as boys should be encouraged to earn money by real service and both should early learn what banks are for and how money grows when it is planted in the right soil, so to speak.
THE BANK OF GLENDALE encourages children's accounts and pays the largest rate of interest consistent with good banking

A young painter living on Oak St. tells a pitiful story of the hard times. He was approached while working on a job in Los Angeles by a poorly dressed man who asked for work. He referred him to his boss, who needing more help, told the man to come to work that afternoon. He came promptly at one o'clock and proved to be a good workman. In the evening he told his fellow workmen that he had been out of work for weeks, that he had walked again and again to Pasadena and other towns seeking employment. He said he was behind $65 in his rent and owed a grocery bill of $13 and that his wife and two little ones had gone hungry many a time. He said he had to go out home for his brushes to commence on that job and having not even a nickel had walked the entire distance, nearly six miles, and back. And this in California, land of sunshine and plenty. Yet this story could probably be duplicated in hundreds of cases.

Mrs. G. V. Reed, 1512 Broadway, has been making frequent visits the past week to Florence, on account of the serious illness of her mother.

Mrs. M. V. Kenyon of 1500 Oak street visited in Long Beach Saturday and Sunday.

Other characters introduced were King Asra of India and his daughter, the Princess Morning Glory, who had heard such wonderful stories about the Vale of Monte Vista that their curiosity could no longer be restrained and they decided they must visit this valley of scenic splendor themselves. They passed through Toyland on the way here and it is whispered that that famous city is looking for a new site and requested King Asra to obtain a good location in Littlelands and we hope the king did, as there are plenty here. These parties will be continueud through the fall and winter during which Santa Claus, Old King Cole and a great many more of the children's friends have promised to stop over and visit for a short time. Fischer assisted and rendered several piano selections appropriate to the occasion, and the affair wound up with an inspiring flag parade, the kiddies marching in column of platoons all around the homestead.

Mr. Lamson has had experience in some of the largest photographic studios in the United States and at the present time sends out hundreds of hand colored photos of the Missions and points of interest of Southern California for the large railroads and sight-seeing companies. He requests that his patrons in this vicinity or nearby towns who wish to have portraits finished before Christmas make appointments as early as possible in order that he may be enabled to finish all work as promised.

Schilling Home Burns

The mountain home of the Chas. Schillings, prominent society folk of Los Angeles, located on Altura street, La Crescenta, was destroyed by fire, Tuesday evening of this week, a little after 10 o'clock.

As the home was used for week ends only, no one was in the house at the time of the fire, and by the time neighbors arrived the entire interior was enveloped in flames. The house was the beginning of a country estate and was built with the idea that it could later be utilized as a garage with quarters. The amount of the loss is not known and the only article saved was a rocking chair, which William Tanday rescued.

Youngest Soldier in War

F. A. Hanger of the Fairmount hotel, quietly celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday Wednesday of this week.

And when the reporter doubted that as spry and well preserved man as Mr. Hanger could be 66 pears of age, Mrs. Hanger produced documents that her husband was not only as old as he claimed, but that he had served in the Civil War as the "youngest" fighting soldier in the war.

He was a member of the 66th regiment of Ohio infantry and according to his captain, C. E. Gardner, Mr. Hanger was not only the "youngest" soldier in the war, but one of the most daring.

Fred Hanger joined his regiment in 1863 as drummer boy and his official unform was easily five inches too long at the pant legs. In 1864 he enlisted as a private; served as scout for Sherman on his famous march to the sea; and was honorably discharged as corporal at the end of the war, only to return to the army for another term.

Mr. Hanger was very reticent about his history as a soldier and as he was not injured in any of the many skirmishes he took part in, the stranger would think him a man too young for the honor of being a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Possibly the reason for Fred Hanger's remarkable career as the "youngest" fighting soldier, was partially due to his captain. "Never a night," said the captain, "did I go to bed without seeing the little fellow asleep."

Since the war, Mr. Hanger has been engaged in farming and the hotel business. He also managed the Point Aix Isle resort in Michigan before coming to California.

Movies Are Busy

Was there a crowd in La Crescenta Thursday? Yes, and then some. The Glendale Kalem Company was making a picture in front of the Wetherbee grocery, at the corner of Michigan and Los Angeles Avenues, while the entire neighborhood looked on. The characters were bushmen and troops and the scene Australia, and exciting!—well everyone present thought so.

Letters received from Mr. Sam Seright, who has just returned to Ohio after visiting several weeks in La Canada, report that he is boosting for California in general and for La Canada in particular.

Mrs. Laird of Tabor, Iowa is spending a few weeks with her father. Mr. Baker of Burr Avenue. Mrs. Laird, it will be remembered, was formerly Mrs. Savage and a few years ago made her home in La Canada. She completely surprised her father and likewise her son, Kent Savage, as neither of them knew she was contemplating a visit to California.

Mr. Wilbur Seright, with his father and mother, and Mrs. McDonald visited Mr. James Morris of Banning for a few days last week. They made the trip in their machine and also took a side trip to the Indian School. A fire in the back end of the machine caused some excitement for a while, but was extinguished before any serious harm was done.

The Overland automobile belonging to an old resident of Haskell street decided Tuesday morning to take a little joy ride. While the owner was transacting some business with a neighbor, the machine started and slowly made its way toward a ditch, then suddenly turned and bumping gently into a telephone pole, came to a stop. There will have to be some repairs made on the machine. Moral: Shut off your engine when you leave your machine.

Miss Rowena Green entertained three of her friends Wednesday evening with a theatre party.

Mr. Claude Kingsbury and Mr. Marion Lea report a total loss in their Swedish case.

Bentley and Schoeneman Lumber company of Montrose have purchased a new Ford chassis, the old body being transferred to the new machine.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Forrester, who have been enjoying an extended tour of the northwest in their machine, have returned to their home on Burr avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Forrester visited the Yosemite valley, the Yellowstone National park, and many of the northern cities. They have been gone several months and have many interesting experiences to relate. They are already planning another trip for the near future.

Improved Highway

The correspondent to the Pasadena Star, writes as follows: Work of paving School street, La Canada, has been started. The contract calls for a mile of improved highway, leading from the junction of Foothill boulevard and the new state highway north to the mountains.

With the completion of this work, there will be opened to the motor enthusiast a drive that for splendid views can hardly be surpassed in the entire foothill region, as the elevation of approximately 2000 feet commands a panorama that embraces all of Pasadena and environs, the San Gabriel valley, Los Angeles and the ocean from Point Dunne to Catalina island.

From the head of School street the new drive leads west through Altadena, Edwin T. Earl's fine property, at which point it meets Hilliard avenue, and thence to the state highway. The new road will open up one of the prettiest sections in what has come to be called the "Switzerland of America."

When the mind and fingers of an individual work together readily great things can be accomplished.
